

Letter to the editor

The worst 'Kemp' secrets in Georgia

Editor:

Last week, Georgia Rep. Marjorie Taylor Greene in Iowa continued to support anti-vaxxers and not wearing a mask even though an area adjacent to her district called Alabama has a health system buckling under COVID.

Gov. Brian Kemp must have Greene's "free-dumb" fighting supporters to win re-election next year even with colonial control of Fulton County. He also controls the Board of Regents, which refuses to implement a mask or vaccine mandate even though former vice-president Mike Pence's home state Indiana University has a vax mandate. No hot bed of liberal thought is Indiana!

The petition of several free-dumb fighting IU students standing firm against the mandate was rejected in court.

Bulloch School Superintendent Charles Wilson doesn't wear a mask at meetings or on school visits. Georgia Southern President Kyle Marrero totally misses the irony of saying, "It's Atlanta, nothing I can do," while sitting in the Marvin Pittman building.

Georgia Southern has required proof of a high school booster shot to enroll in the recent past so a vax mandate like the one at Indiana University would not be new.

Nothing is "data driven," "evidence based" or "genuine" here. It's just staying in power politics.

No need to write to Rep. Rick Allen and get back the usual form letter thanking you for support (i.e. letting you know you were ignored again).

Greg Brock
Statesboro